DEL DISEÑO Y LA ESCULTURA

Luis Caruncho, cuya ejemplar actividad en los más distintos campos de la cultura, abarca desde la creación pictórica, el comisariado de exposiciones o la dirección de centros y fundaciones culturales hasta la investigación y la crítica de arte, ha escrito un libro inteligente, necesario y clarificador sobre David Marshall. Un artista libre, que rompiendo ataduras de grupo y de concepto, se entrega a la escultura en busca de un camino de expresión. Su profundo conocimiento del oficio sostiene el juego de unas formas, inteligentemente modeladas, en las que se entremezclan la anécdota y el símbolo, el volumen, la línea, el color y el vacío.

Tiene razón Rosa Martínez de Lahidalga cuando, con su habitual agudeza, escribe: "David Marshall, convierte utensilios y materiales arcaicos en piezas escultóricas cuya verticalidad recuerda en ocasiones, en versión preciosista, los dólmenes célticos... Estructuras dinámicas unas veces o hieráticas otras, combina formas ornamentales cuya expresividad conserva el eco de los mitos ancestrales y, sublimado, un potencial alegórico". En sus inconfundibles esculturas conviven el hierro, el bronce, el latón y la madera, al servicio de un variable concepto creativo que oscila entre la forma abstracta o la figuración, sin otro código estético que su propia exigencia de belleza. David Marshall o hace crecer sus obras como árboles, hasta más de dos metros, o las reduce hasta la miniatura, sin que por ello pierdan ni su fuerza expresiva ni el frágil equilibrio de su ritmo interior.

Carlos Areán escribió en 1967, con profunda inteligencia y con notable anticipación: "Todos los objetos característicos de una época, ya sean herramientas, máquinas, muebles o esculturas, deben responder a una paralela voluntad de expresión formal, y adecuarse, por tanto, íntimamente, los unos a los otros". Quizás por eso, su dedicación al arte del diseño, en el que ocupa un puesto destacado internacionalmente reconocido, no sólo no ha entorpecido su carrera de escultor, sino que ha completado su búsqueda incansable de aportaciones formales.

Desde 1970, en que se presentó en la Gallery Hamilton de Londres, David Marshall ha llevado a cabo más de cincuenta exposiciones individuales en diversas ciudades de Estados Unidos, Francia, Suiza, Dinamarca, Bélgica, Grecia, Portugal y España, acompañado siempre por el éxito, ya que en su personalidad creadora se dan cita la espontaneidad del hallazgo, el dominio de la materia, la sutileza del concepto, la elegancia de la forma y la armoniosa utilización del color. Virtudes que se han mantenido constantes en su obra, a través de los años, desde su iniciación.

ON DESIGN AND SCULPTURE

Luis Caruncho, whose unprecedented contribution in a wide variety of cultural fields ranges from pictorial creation, to exhibition commissioning and the management of cultural centres and foundations, as well as to art research and criticism, has written this intelligent, essential and enlightening book on David Marshall. A free artist who, severing all ties with groups or concepts, devotes himself to a sculptural quest for his own expressive path. His in-depth knowledge of his trade forms the pillar for a play on intelligently moulded forms that blend anecdote and symbol, volumes, lines, colour and voids. Rosa Martínez de Lahidalga, with her usual precision, very aptly wrote: "David Marshall transforms archaic materials and utensils into sculptural works of art whose verticality often resembles a "precious" version of Celtic dolmen... Structures that are often dynamic, sometimes hieratical, combining ornamental forms that retain, in their expressivity, the echo of ancestral myths and subliminal allegoric potentiality".

Iron, bronze, brass and wood are brought together in his unmistakable sculptures, in the service of a variable creative concept wavering between abstract and figurative form, and whose sole aesthetic code is its own quest for beauty. David Marshall's works either grow like trees, perhaps even two metres tall, or they are reduced to miniatures which, even so, lose neither their expressive force nor the fragile equilibrium of their internal rhythm. In 1967 Carlos Areán, wisely and with great foresight, wrote: "Any object that characterises an era, albeit tools, machines, furniture or sculptures, should respond to a parallel quest for formal expression and should, therefore, intimately adapt themselves to one another". Perhaps this is why his dedication to the artistic field of design, where he enjoys a distinguished ranking of international renown, has not held him back as a sculptor but has, rather, fulfilled his tireless search for formal contributions.

Since 1970, the year of his introduction at the London Hamilton Gallery, David Marshall has held more than fifty individual exhibitions in various cities throughout USA, France, Switzerland, Denmark, Belgium, Greece, Portugal and Spain. These exhibitions have always been a great success, for his creative personality combines spontaneous discoveries, mastery of his materials, subtlety of concept, elegance of form and the harmonious use of colour. Right from the outset, and throughout the years, these virtues have remained constants in his works.

PROCESO Y MANTENIMIENTO

“La individualidad de cada diseño nace de la creatividad del escultor”

DAVID MARSHALL (Edimburgo 1942)

Después de elaborar los nuevos prototipos en su estudio de Benaolán (Ronda), se presentan anualmente en Milán, Madrid y otras ferias internacionales. Los modelos seleccionados son llevados a sus talleres en Alhaurín de la Torre (Málaga) para fundirlos a mano a la arena este proceso de fundición asegura que cada pieza sea sutilmente diferente y original. Después del pulido a mano cada diseño está tratado con un baño de ultra sonido, se barnizan con pistola electrostática finalmente se introducen las piezas en el horno a 150° C consiguiendo así que se mantengan perfectamente. Las piezas se presentan en bolsas de jute y lana hechas en Ronda acompañadas de un certificado de autenticidad.

PROCESS AND CARE

“The individuality of every design springs from the creativity of sculptor”

DAVID MARSHALL (Edinburgh 1942)

After he has produced the prototype in his Benaolán (Ronda) studio his latest collection is presented annually in Milan, Madrid and other international fairs .

The sand casting process ensures that each piece is subtly different and individual.

After manual polishing every design is cleaned in an ultrasonic bath before being electrostatically varnished and then baked at 150 °C so that no further cleaning is required. The pieces are presented with pig skin bases and wool and jute bags made in Ronda accompanied by a certificate of authenticity.

A craftsman with grey hair, wearing a light-colored sweater with a dark geometric pattern, is focused on working on a clock mechanism. He is seated at a wooden workbench, using his hands to adjust a small, intricate part. The workshop is dimly lit, with a warm, golden light emanating from a desk lamp on the right. The background shows wooden shelves and various tools and parts scattered on the workbench, creating a sense of a traditional, hands-on craft.

A man with curly hair, wearing a light-colored t-shirt and shorts, is seated on a wooden chair in a workshop. He is holding a small, dark, circular object with a handle, possibly a part of a lamp or a piece of furniture, and is looking at it intently. The workshop is filled with various tools, materials, and finished or partially finished items. A large, dark, cylindrical object, possibly a lampshade or a piece of furniture, is visible in the foreground. The background shows a window and some shelves with more items. The overall atmosphere is one of a busy, creative workspace.
